Draft Urban Design Report for Cromwell Town Centre available for feedback.

The draft final Cromwell Town Centre redevelopment report is available for comment from Wednesday 21 April. This will largely be a written version of the public presentation held on March 29, incorporating any worthy ideas raised at that time. Urbanism identified “seven big moves” that it feels will be the drivers and principles for improving The Mall.

“This opportunity is to comment or provide correction to the report being prepared for the Cromwell Community Board by Urbanism Plus. For example, you may consider that an aspect of the plan is not fully developed or there is missing information or there is an error of fact. We would also like your thoughts about the seven key principles – have we got them right?” says Business Development Manager for Central Otago District Council, Jonathan Gadd.

Mr Gadd adds “it is not normal for consultants’ reports to be given to the public for comment prior to being finalised. However, the intention has always been to engage as much as we can in developing the plan, and this is part of the engagement.”

After the Board has received the final report a full formal consultation process will take place. This will be the appropriate time to comment on the actual details of the plan or to suggest alternatives.

The draft report is available on the Council’s website (www.codc.govt.nz) and on www.centralotagonz.com. Alternatively, copies can be obtained by contacting the Council’s business development manager, Jonathan Gadd by email: jonathan.gadd@codc.govt.nz

All feedback received will be collated and fed back to Urbanism Plus, the company engaged to undertake a detailed urban design review of The Mall.

All feedback relating to the draft final report must be received by the Central Otago District Council by 5pm on April 30.
