Feedback on Naseby's Draft Community Plan

After a successful community workshop, a business survey and community survey, the updated Draft Naseby Community Plan is now available for comment. This plan includes multiple layers of ideas that reflect the local community's aspirations.

Many of the actions identified in the Naseby's original community plan are now completed.

Mathew Begg, Council's Community Development Manager said, "The community considered it was time to update the community plan and this is the first community to start version two of their plan."

According to Naseby Vision Chairman John Crawford, the organisation sees the plan as being a road map for its future projects and activities. He says "that he hopes that the current draft will encourage even further input from the community about the future shape of the town and its infrastructure."

Feedback and suggestions are welcome. Submissions close for the Naseby Plan on Friday, 23 July 2010.

Copies are available in Naseby, the Ranfurly Service Centre and Council's website – www.codc.govt.nz or you can call Community Development Manager (03) 440 0629 and get a copy sent to you.
